Nothing could be finer than to have been in Bovina last night!!! There was no set list to speak of it was a random free for all you call it they play it kinda deal. They also played some interesting covers including The Only Daddy That'll Walk The Line, Tonight the Bottle Let Me Down, and Escape(the Pina Colada song no bullshitting!!). I wish more of you could have been there. Chico has a an amazing spread in Bovina and is one hell of a carpenter, built his own house, barn and carriage house. It was just a good night all the way around, the local Bovinians know their BRox, and were rocking out hard aided by biscuits(not disco biscuits) and hard cider. I don't want to say too much now I'd rather wait for Buck to lay out the details in a Northeast report(he just does it better), but the Quarrywoman and I had a blast as always. Thanks for a great time guys!!

Wish I could have made it up there last night.

Actually, the builder is Chico's brother Dan. Dan was the lead singer in the opening band Disciples of Agriculture. Dan was a union setbuilder in the movie buiz till he moved upstate and started working a lot up there. It really is something to see a beautiful brand new old house like that. The barn is off the hook.

Anyone got any pics of the ranch?

Wow, sounds like one of those super fun shows where everyone is having the best time.

However, if I heard the band doing Rupert Holmes, I would stab myself.

Yeah we're sorry we missed you Roscoe, I thought for sure you would've made it. I really enjoyed the Disciples of Agriculture, and Dan I tip my hat to you, very nice work. As far as video I never shot any, I was just having too much fun, it would have been cool to capture Escape for posterity, but now it will just have to live as a legend in the annals of BRox history. I snapped a couple of pics at the beginning of the show, but I'm hopeless at posting them here. I blow stuff up for a living, don't work with a computer too much ya know!

My wife's birthday and last minute friday work obligations kept me from getting up there. It is a great place and all the pals up there are very cool too.

this sounded like it was so much fun and I am sorry I couldn't make it. But at least I got to see them in NYC.
